Faubus Wants 'Third Party' to Break Deadlock

Governor Thinks Negro Students Should Pull Out of School

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus feels that only the removal of Negro students from Central High School by a "third party" will break the deadlock between the governor and President Eisenhower, a reliable source told United Press today.

The governor feels that such a "third party" as the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People should pull the Negro students out of integrated Central High to allow a cooling off period, the source said.

Mrs. Lucius C. Bates, president of the Little Rock chapter of the NAACP was not available for comment on whether any such idea of transferring six girls and three boys back to Horace Mann (Negro) School would be likely.

Wants Assurances

Mrs. Bates has said that the only circumstances under which she would permit the Negro children to stay at Central High would be assurances from the White House that the children "would be protected."

The governor, showing signs of fatigue from an attack of the flu, said Wednesday there was no backing down on his part. At a news conference Faubus failed to show any optimism of troop removal in the near future as reported in Washington by President Eisenhower.

The President added that "as quickly as the local people . . . say that they have got the thing right in their hands" there no longer will be any need for federal troops. However, the President appeared to be expressing a "hope" rather than any belief that the time was near.

On the matter of soldiers invading the privacy of shorts - clad school girls, Faubus said he had names, addresses and telephone numbers. He invited "someone" from the secretary of the Army's office here to talk to him about it.

Leader Dodges Senate Question

HARRISBURG UP —. Gov. George M.. Leader today sidestepped a question as to whether he will run for the U.S. Senate next year.

The governor first parried. a question at his news conference as to whether he agreed with U. S. Sen. Joseph S. Clark Jr. D-Pa. that Mayor Richardson Dilworth of Philadelphia should be drafted by the Democratic Party to run for governor in 1958.

He then was questioned concerning. the. possibility. of. a Leader-Dilworth ticket, with the governor running for the Senate. "I don't want to discuss the matter at this point.". Leader said.

Ike Personally Apologizes to Ghana Minister

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower personally apologized to Finance Minister K. A. Gbedemah of Ghana today for the refusal of a Dover, Del. restaurant to serve him Monday because he is a Negro.

The incident prompted Eisenhower to have Gbedemah come to the White House for breakfast with him this morning. Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who visited Gbedemah's home during his tour of Ghana last March, also was present at the breakfast.

Gbedemah later told reporters that Eisenhower expressed an apology for the restaurant incident.

"He (Eisenhower) was a little worried that it happened," Gbedemah said. "But I think that when he invited me to breakfast it made up for all that I went through the other day."

The President told him that little things like the Dover incident are "happening all over the place" and one doesn't know when and where "they are going to blow up," Gbedemah said.

Orange juice was omitted from the traditional American breakfast of bacon, eggs, toast and coffee served at the White House. The Ghana official said he believed Eisenhower "did that on purpose" because it was orange juice that a waitress in a Howard Johnson restaurant at Dover refused to serve him.

Girard Victim's Husband Warned Her of Firings

MAEBASHI, Japan (UP)—The husband of the Japanese shell picker who was shot and killed by Army Sp-3 William S. Girard testified today he warned his wife "numerous times" to stay away from the Camp Weir firing range during U.S. Army exercises.

Arikichi Saki told of his repeated warnings before the Japanese court trying Girard on charges of manslaughter in the death of Mrs. Naka Sakai last Jan. 30. He admitted it was one of his duties as village councillor to instruct villagers to keep away from the range when firing practices were underway.

The first witness called by the defense, however, testified that shell pickers crowded so close to American soldiers the day Mrs. Sakai was killed that they kicked over a machinegun and knocked down the gunner.

Big Suit Dismissed

WILMINGTON, Del. (UP) — ard S. Rodney Wednesday dismissed U. S. District Court Judge Riched a one million dollar damage suit brought against the Beech Aircraft Corp. by the mother of an executive killed in a crash Oct. 3, 1953.

Red Satellite Shows No Signs of Slowing Down, Scientists Say

LONDON (UP) — Moscow announced today the Russian earth satellite had traveled the equivalent of five round trips to the moon, a statement that heightened world concern over push-button warfare and disarmament.

The problem of disarmament received a new note of urgency today by a United Press Washington report that Russia may have fired an intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM) with a hydrogen bomb warhead.

President Eisenhower called a meeting of the National Security Council in Washington today for hard discussions of the effects of the Russian advancement in the ICBM and other weapons.

Europe Banks On U.S.

Western Europe, in editorials in leading newspapers, appealed to the United States to give the world a firm lead in dealing with the Soviet Union over international control of missiles and space travel. It also was relying on reports the U.S. was speeding its own missile program.

The "moon of peace" showed no signs of slowing down. World scientists reported today the satellite was closer to the earth than ever, but British scientist Martin Ryle said "the satellite's got a lot of life in it yet."

A spokesman at the Mullard Laboratories said signals from the satellite were "loud and clear" when it passed over Britain this morning. He placed the altitude at 300 miles — some 260 lower than the original altitude claimed by Moscow.

Other Moon Reports

Here were some principal developments in the satellite story:

LONDON — Moscow Radio announced the Sputnik had traveled 2,173,000 miles in making 78 revolutions around the globe since it was launched Friday. Earlier Moscow said it was picking up speed and would circle the globe for a "long time."

BONN, Germany—The Bonn Observatory reported the satellite moving in a smaller orbit and giving the impression of more speed. A revolution required 96.2 minutes on Oct. 6 and now takes only 95.52 minutes, it said.

MADRID, Spain — Sen. Homer E. Capehart (R - Ind.), in commenting on Russia's "first," told newsmen "to be first is not to be the most important. Marconi invented radio but the United States has produced more radio sets than anyone else in the world."

Space Travel Seen Limited

BARCELONA, Spain — American delegates to the International Astronautical Congress (in recess today) suggested the use of 7,000 m.p.h. planes to aid in landing crews from manned rocket flights into space.

LONDON — Sir Harold Spencer-Jones, retired astronomer royal called the satellite "but a small step towards the solution of a much greater problem." He said space travel by manned vehicles to anywhere except the moon "will never become possible."

'Huge Fireball' Crashes to Earth In Utah State

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (UP)—A "huge fireball" hurtled over several Western states today and narrowly missed striking a Navy plane before it crashed in the vicinity of Myton, Utah, near the Colorado-Utah state line.

An air traffic control spokesman here said the plane was almost hit by the fireball which shot across the pre-dawn skies over Denver at 4:05 a.m. m.s.t.

The spokesman said the plane followed the fireball and saw it crash 20 to 30 miles from Myton, where it apparently had set off a number of fires.

The fireball also was seen over Rapid City, S.D., and Dalhart, Tex. There were other reports that it was sighted over Wyoming.

There was speculation the "fireball" might be part of a rocket that put the Russian satellite in an orbit around the earth late last Friday.

A CAA official in Denver said the fireball was the largest he had ever seen. He said it appeared to be blue and was trailing long streams of flame.

Tank Placed in Position Here

An 35-ton M4 Sherman tank, to be used as a war memorial, was placed in position yesterday, it was announced today by John Hurrianko, commander of Allison-Lescanac Post 1190, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

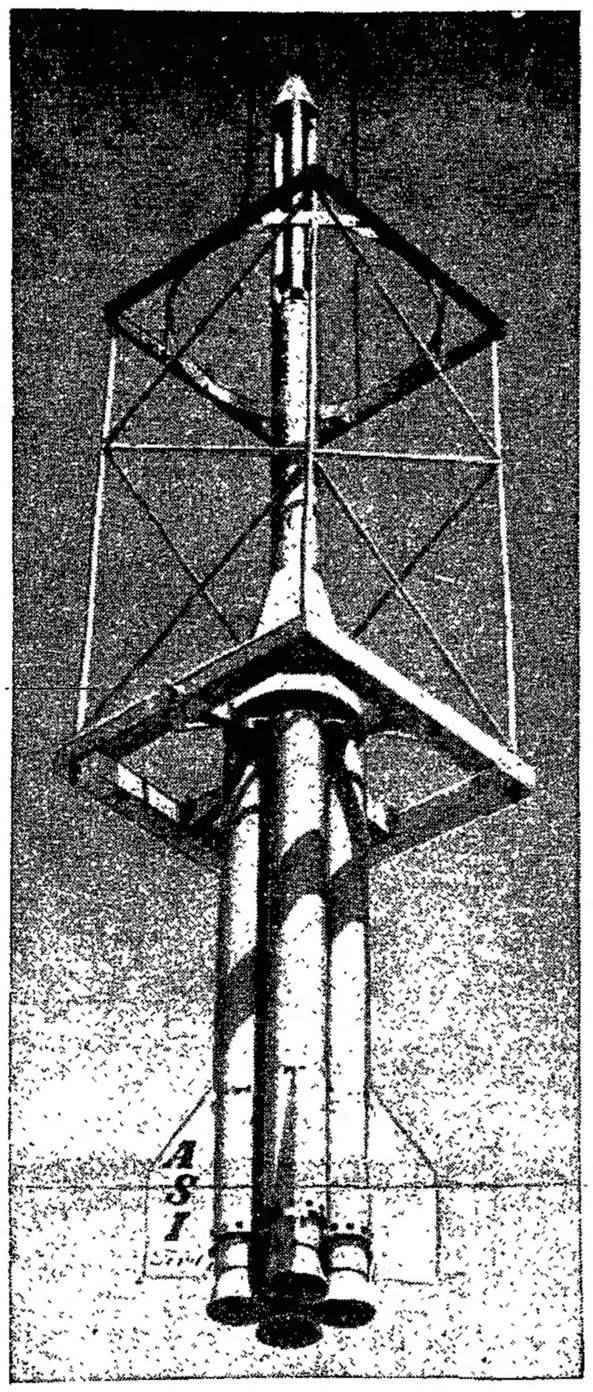
The tank was set on a concrete slab in City Park. Landscaping of the grounds surrounding the memorial will be started as soon as possible, Hurrianko said.

Monessen Man Is Indicted by Jury

A Monessen man was among the 26 persons indicted by the Westmoreland County Grand jury in Greensburg, it was revealed yesterday.

The local man, Harry Laatu Jr., and William Manor, of R. D., Elizabeth, were indicted on burglary and larceny charges by Stanley Morgan.

It was alleged the two men entered a Sutersville service station on Aug. 21 and took $97.89 in cash.



WAITING FOR RIGHT WEATHER — This is the first actual photograph of the Ford-built rocket to be launched from a balloon-suspended platform some 20 miles above the Pacific at Eniwetok atoll. The project, "Farside," will try to send the multi-stage rocket 1,000 to 4,000 miles above the earth's atmosphere. The rocket is ready and scientists are waiting for just the right weather for the launching.

Ike Talks Satellites With Security Council

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower met with the National Security Council today to discuss Russia's spectacular accomplishments with the intercontinental ballistic missile.

The session began amid demands for a speed up of the U.S. effort to perfect the so-called "ultimate weapon."

Lending new urgency to the reappraisal was a report the Russians may already have exploded an H-bomb borne high into space by an ICBM.

Congressional Democrats joined by New Hampshire Republican Sen. Styles Bridges moved ahead with demands for a searching reappraisal of U.S. missile and satellite programs.

No Cause For Hysteria

Bridges said the Russian breakthrough, although not a cause for hysteria, warrants a thorough investigation of "our immediate and long-range" missile and satellite objectives. The Senate Preparedness Subcommittee already has launched an inquiry to determine if the situation warrants a broader investigation.

Amid the sound and fury kicked up by the Sputnik, the armed forces began removing "bottlenecks" to speed up their missile programs. Defense Secretary Neil

U.S. Wants New Weapon Used Towards Peace

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP) — The United States warned today the world "must not miss the chance" of "harnessing for peace man's new pioneering efforts in outer space."

U. S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, presenting the Western disarmament position to the United Nations Main Political Commitee, made no direct reference to Russia's man-made moon now circling the globe, but he said:

"We seek agreement on ways to control the latest creation of science — the outer space weapon. This device can serve the purposes of peace or it can blow us to bits. We have only begun to learn of its possibilities but we know it is too dangerous to ignore.

Cites U.S. Proposal

"In 1946, when the United States alone had nuclear weapons, we proposed to the United Nations a plan to insure the peaceful use of this new and tremendous force of atomic energy by putting it under international control. We made that proposal.

"The world knows now that a decade of anxiety and trouble could have been avoided if that plan had been accepted.

"We now have a similar opportunity to harness for peace man's new pioneering efforts in outer space. We must not miss this chance."

Lodge repeated the proposal made by the Western powers at the London disarmament conference earlier this year to establish a technical committee to study the design of an inspection system "to assure that the sending of objects through outer space will be exclusively for peaceful and scientific purposes."

"If there is general agreement to proceed with this study on a multilateral basis, the United States is prepared to join in this initiative without waiting for conclusion of negotiations on other substantive proposals," Lodge said.

He said Washington was ready to begin "the entire first stage" of a disarmament program "without any political conditions whatever and without demanding that a single political condition be met."

"We are dealing here with a disarmament program on which the United States and its three co-sponsors (Britain, France and Canada) are ready to embark without delay," Lodge went on.

Suspend Nuclear Tests

"The first part would be suspension of nuclear tests. The necessary control system should be in operation before the end of the first year of the suspension . . . The question of suspending nuclear tests lies in the hands of the Soviet Union. It can bring testing to a halt if it wants to."

Japanese Ambassador Koto Matsudaira, speaking to the 82-nation committee immediately after Lodge, urged U.N. adoption of a one-year moratorium on nuclear

Leader Claims Third Party May Form in South

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader said today there is a "fair possibility" of a third party being organized again in the South as a result of the Little Rock school integration issue.

Leader made the comment at a news conference in reply to a question concerning the effects the integration dispute may have on Democratic chances in future elections.

Asked whether he thought it would be a good thing if the southern element of the Democratic Party were asked to get out, Leader said:

"I wouldn't say they ought to get out. But they have got to stand for what the Democratic Party stands for."

The questioning also revolved around latest developments in the Levittown situation where a Negro family moved into the Bucks County community, resulting in disturbances which forced the governor to send in state police at the request of community officials.

The governor said that "every precaution" is being taken "to see that a repetition will not occur of the events that took place at the beginning of that affair." He indicated that would include state police keeping a close watch on developments in Levittown.

Valley Dentists In Uniform Fees

The Mid-Monongahela Valley Dental Association, made up of dentists from Monessen, Monongahela, Donora, Charleroi, Belle Vernon and surrounding areas, today announced an adjustment of dental fees.

The association said the adjustment "is not intended to mean an increase in all instances, but is for the purpose of establishing a uniform fee for services rendered throughout the valley."

It was learned that the adjustment means that a person will pay the same for dental work in Monessen as he would in other communities belonging to the association.

'Sky Ice' Investigation 'Big Joke', State Policeman Claims

HARRISBURG (UP) — A three week state police investigation has thus far turned up no bona fide cases of ice formations falling from the sky.

In the first rush of reports after the inquiry was opened Sept. 26, troopers tracked down sources of "mysterious ice formations" to quite natural causes.

A tray of ice cubes dumped by a night watchman, a cake of ice left in an open field one morning by a milkman, a small chunk of ice that fell from the back of a truck, and similar incidents were all reported to the state police laboratory in Harrisburg as "sky ice."

Col A. F. Dahlstrom, deputy state police commissioner, cancelled a teletype order last week directing troopers throughout the state to report ice incidents to headquarters. But the laboratory and the state Aeronautics Commission are still standing by to analyze any ice specimens which cannot be traced to natural sources.

"As far as I'm concerned it's a big joke," Col. Dahlstrom said. "There can't be that much ice dropping from the heavens."

Dr. Malcolm Reider, a Reading chemist who analyzed one of the two specimens which have thus far been subject to laboratory examination, is largely responsible for the meterological theory. Reider suggested that the ice he examined was formed in a storm in the atmosphere over the western United States and carried by the high-altitude jet stream until it was deposited in Berks County.

The Weather Bureau, however, discounted Reider's theory.

"Whenever people can't explain something, they blame it on the weather," Paul Sutton, chief of the U.S. Weather Bureau at Harrisburg, said. "It would take a wind with a velocity of 1,000 knots per hour to carry a piece of ice as heavy as the piece Dr. Reider examined. Velocities like that just don't occur in nature. Why 200 knots is about as big as we've ever recorded."

Sutton also said the jet stream was over Canada on the day Dr. Reider said it brought the ice to Pennsylvania.

The theory generally given the most credence is that the ice is formed on high-altitude aircraft.

State police Sgt. Elmer J. Bottiglier, who analyzed the only other specimen, said it contained microscopic chips of aluminum alloy metal and small, colored cloth fibers. Bottiglier suggested that the metal came from the aircraft wing where the ice was formed, and that the fibers are from the cloths used to wipe down the aircraft.

If the ice is formed on planes, the officials will probably be stumped. Most of the high-altitude aircraft in the nation's skies today are part of the Air Force's Strategic Air Command.

Complete Plans for Civic Music Campaign

Final plans were completed last night for the coming membership campaign by members of the Monessen-Belle Vernon Civic Music Association.

Campaign headquarters, which will open Monday, will be at Rosenson's Furniture Store, Sixth St. and Donner Ave.

Civic Music is preparing for its sixth season of winter concerts. Only members are admitted to the programs in the Monessen High School auditorium.

At last night's meeting, held in the office of School Superintendent Dr. Joseph J. Pallone; Mrs. Willard Krasik and Thomas Preston, co-chairmen, distributed renewal memberships to volunteer workers for personal contact so that present members may have priority by renewing immediately.

Following the kick-off dinner, Thursday, Oct. 17 at 6:30 in Johnson's Restaurant, membership will be on a first-come first-serve basis.

The membership campaign will be conducted until Oct. 26 with the membership list closing on the latter date.

Civic Music had over 900 members last season, but campaign workers are hoping to hit the capacity of 1,000 members this year.

Present members who wish to be assured of admission this year should send in their renewals promptly. Dues are $6 for adults and $3 for students, the same as in previous years.

All Civic Music funds are used for artists' fees and other expenses in connection with programs. There are no profits.

Four concerts have been presented each year and a similar number is expected to be arranged.

The board of directors has already contracted for the appearance of Jerome Hines, star basso of the Metropolitan Opera, as one of the features of this coming year's series.

The importance of completing the ballots on talent selections was stressed by both Mrs. Krasik and Preston. In this way the talent committee can select the most popular requests to insure a more balanced series.

Mrs. Paul Latkanich is Associ ation president.

$7,524 Is Stolen At Bank

MARYSVILLE, Pa (UP)—Roadblocks were manned by state police over a wide area of central Pennsylvania today for a bandit who held up the First National Bank of Marysville and escaped with $7,524 after threatening three employes

The gunman, wielding a nickel-plated revolver, forced Kenneth C Toomey, assistant cashier, to fill a large paper grocery bag with the money all in bills, and said he wanted 10 minutes to escape.

"If you don't cooperate, I have a man outside who will kill you," he added

Mrs Mildred Hoffman and Marion E Bitting bookkeepers, were in the bank with Toomey when the bandit entered Wednesday afternoon He was described as about 50, six feet tall and weighing about 200 pounds, and wore a dark blue suit, a light shirt, a gray felt hat, buff colored shoes with crepe soles and dark-rimmed glasses.

Toomey said the same man visited the bank Tuesday and asked for information concerning a family he said lived in the community. When he returned Wednesday, the robber told Toomey he had found the party he was seeking Toomey left the teller's case for a moment after speaking to the bandit, and when he returned he was confronted with the pistol

State police said the gunman overlooked money in other drawers and ignored bags of money in the vault. He fled in a late model, yellow Studebaker

The Federal Bureau of Investigation was called into the case because the bank is a member of the Federal Reserve System

H McElroy, who took over his new job Wednesday, said the United States also is considering speeding up missile testing to get them into operational units faster if possible.

The United States is changing its satellite plans to put one in orbit in December Plans for test satellite launchings had been announced previously. But scientists said then that no attempt would be made to aim the 6½-inch test spheres into an orbit around the earth.

Moon Launchings Pinpointed

Eisenhower said Wednesday, however, that plans now call for putting the December sphere into an orbit He also pinpointed March as the month for launching this country's 20-inch satellite Previous plans called only for firing it in early spring

The President said progress of the U S satellite program "cannot be taken as an index of our progress" in developing an intercontinental ballistic missile He emphasized the two programs had been kept separate for scientific and defense reasons

In another development, the Army warned its missile experts to stay out of the public controversy over America's failure to send up an earth-circling satellite ahead of Russia

Bloom Blasts Leader's Naming Of Trimarchi

HARRISBURG (UP)—Republican State Chairman George I Bloom charged today the administration should 'make public all the facts' of the state job he'd by newly appointed Pennsylvania Turnpike Commissioner E James Trimarchi Jr

"Gov. (George M) Leader apparently is anxious to conceal the fact that Trimarchi, who was given a state job three weeks after the Democrats took over the administration in 1955, is a close friend of former Secretary of Labor and Industry John R Torquato," Bloom said

Torquato, Cambria County Democratic chairman was fired earlier this year following an investigation of a special $1 170,000 fund in his department It was disclosed Tuesday Trimarchi resigned a $194 90 bi-weekly salaried job as a field investigator in the department Oct 1 the same day he was named to the $13 000 yearly turnpike position

Bloom said Trimarchi conducted his investigations "so quietly that even the people of his home community were unaware that he was a full time employe of Commonwealth" Trimarchi Indiana, had been a state employe since Feb 9 1955 and Indiana County Democratic chairman for several years

The Republican leader challenged the governor to make public the names of 'other Democratic county chairmen' on the Bureau of Social Security for Public Employes payroll in the Labor and Industry Department

'From what we have been told it will be a very interesting revelation to the taxpayers of Pennsylvania,' Bloom said

Boerio Keim Giannini

GIANNINI INSTALLED AS POST COMMANDER — Angelo Giannini last night was installed as post commander of Thomas McKee Post, 28, Monessen. Taking part in the ceremonies were Joseph Boerio, District 31 commander, and Earl S. Keim, District judge advocate.

Giannini Installed as Legion Commander Here Last Night

A large crowd witnessed the installation of officers last night at Monessen Thomas McKee Post 28.

The ceremonies were directed by Joseph Boerio, District 31 commander, and a staff of eight district deputies.

Angelo Giannini was installed as post commander, succeeding Peter Stieska. Giannini is serving as commander for the third time. Others installed were:

Boris Pishko, first vice commander; William Pavlovich; second vice commander; John A. Snyder, adjutant; C. R. Murphy, finance: George Chesmar, chaplain; Andy Valko, historian; and Denver Rhome, service officer.

Following installation, Commander Giannini introduced Earl S. Keim, District judge advocate. Keim spoke briefly on the aims of the district's program, which includes promoting Americanism and a "back-to-God" movement.

Keim also said the Legion is in favor of the Korean bonus which the public is to vote on in the Nov. 5 general election.

"When a person votes for the Korean bonus, they are not giving our boys charity, but they are showing their appreciation and gratitude for a job well done," he said.

Others introduced were Boyd Howell, District membership chairman: Minnie Sadler, president of Post 28 Ladies Auxiliary, and her officers; members from Belle Vernon Post 659, and local past commanders, Dr. L. C. Lee, Harry McDermott, Jack Snyder, Jack Beck, George Chesmar and Steve Major.

After the meeting, members and guests were served a hot lunch by the Auxiliary.

John Simkanich was in charge of refreshments. Denver Rhome provided organ music in the lounge.

Gilfert Mihalich was reception chairman and Harry McDermott and Louis Domyancic were in charge of entertainment.

The membership report showed 77 signed up for 1958. The Legion year begins officially Oct. 20.

Open House Monday at W&J Student Center

An informal reception and open house to introduce the public to the recently completed Center at Washington and Jefferson College will be held in the Center on Monday from 8 to 10 p.m.

The public is invited to inspect the facilities of the two-level stone and red brick structure which will become the focal point for student activities at W. & J.

The lower level contains four bowling alleys, snack bar and a recreation room with shuffle boards, ping-pong tables and card tables. The upper level provides conference rooms, rooms for student projects, main lounge and photo darkroom.

The building measures 115 feet long by 53 feet wide and was erected through funds raised during the first phase of the college's ten-year greater development program.

A feature of the open house will be an exhibition of contemporary oil paintings by a group of Philadelphia artists. Twenty widely recognized painters will be represented, each of whom has had national exhibits or one-man shows. Many of the artists are represented in European salons and outstanding private collections here and abroad.

The exhibition is made available to Washington and Jefferson through Traveling Art, Inc., a non-profit orginization founded four years ago for the purpose of making available the best of Philadelphia art for showing at colleges, universities and other institutions throughout the U.S., Europe and Canada.

Campaign Briefs—

Democrats Reject Local Debate; 'Turnerism' Blasted by Pershing

The Democratic campaign committee for Westmoreland county has closed the door on any arrangement for having their candidates meet the Republicans on the same platform for a debute in Monessen.

In a letter to the editor of The Daily Independent, the Democratic chairman, Jay W. Kromer, said the calendar is too full to allow such a meeting.

The Republican committee had previously suggested a debate arrangement to get the pertinent issues of the campaign before the voters. The Independent was asked to sponsor the meeting in Monessen.

Harry R. Pore, Jr., editor of the paper, advised both campaign chairmen that The Independent would be of any service it could, including provision of a hall and any other assistance the chairmen might consider appropriate.

'Heavy Schedule'

"Although I commend you in this effort", Kromer wrote, "and in your other interests in good government, I regret that such a meeting conflicts with the heavy schedule the Democratic candidates have for district meetings in all sections of the county, and we will be unable to participate.

"We have a meeting for Monessen scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 2, and we are sure that persons in your city can attend this, or other similar meetings, throughout the area, and follow the news reports of this meeting, to get the discussion of campaign issues from the Democratic candidates."

GOP Meets Oct. 22

Representative Robert Breon, Jr. of State College will be the principal speaker at a dinner of Westmoreland County Republicans at the Baldoc Hills Country Club Tuesday evening, Oct. 22. Breon is a member of the House Committee on Law and Order.

Announcement of the dinner was made by Joseph J. Adams, North Huntingdon Twp. GOP chairman, who said all voters in the county will be welcome. Tickets are available at $2.50 each.

Breon's address will precede by four days that of State Senator William Z. Scott, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, who will speak at a $10-a-plate Republican dinner and rally at Mountain View Hotel Oct. 26.

In a letter to Edwin A. Swink, Republican county chairman, Breon expressed pleasure at being invited "to speak in the land of Dent."

Breon is a native of State College. He was educated there and in Winona, Ind. He is a veteran of the U. S. Naval Intelligence Service, having spent 33 months in Iceland, Greenland and Southeast Asia. He was awarded the Presidential Citation.

The speaker was twice elected to the State College Borough Council and was serving as president when he resigned to run for the General Assembly. He is a director of the Mount Nittany Savings and Loan Co., a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion, Masons and the Jaffa Shrine. He is a past exalted ruler of the Elks.

Mrs. Breon, who will accompany her husband to this county, is chairman of the Junior Republican Women, North Central District. The couple have two children.

Associated with the North Hunt-Committee in staging the dinner will be the Irwin and North Irwin Republican Committees, the Irwin Young Republicans and the Irwin Council of Republican Women. The Baldoc Hills club is at the Irwin interchange on the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Hits 'Turnerism'

Avra N. Pershing Jr., Republican nominee for judge of Westmoreland County common pleas court, last night took sharp issue with a statement by Earl S. Keim, Democratic candidate for district attorney, that if he, Keim, is elected Nov. 5 he will be the district attorney in fact as well as in name.

Keim also told a meeting of Democratic party workers in Lower Burrell Twp. Tuesday night that other Democratic county candidates will likewise be their own bosses if they are elected.

"The record does not bear out Mr. Keim's statements. Pershing said at a meeting of the Hempfield Twp. Republican Women's Council and Republican women of Jeannette in Lincoln Heights. "The Democratic candidates of the past have made the same professions but the hand of Arthur 'Buddy' Turner continues to rule the offices they hold.

"The most recent examples of Turner's control have been the selection of district attorney, L. Alexander Sculco and one of his assistants, David Weiss as Democratic candidates for common pleas court and their endorsement, along with the third candidate, Judge Edward G. Bauer, by the other three Westmoreland judges, Richard D. Laird, John M. O'Connell and Charles D. Copeland," he continued. "No, Mr. Keim's assertions have a familiar and very hollow sound."

Robert H. Rial, also a GOP nominee for judge, stressed the need of defeating "Turnerism" Nov. 5 in the interest of good government for the people. Willis Toppe, the third nominee cited the Republican judicial candidates' platform. He pointed out that he and his fellow candidates are pledged to "administer justice speedily and mercifully, tempering justice with mercy but without regard to political expediency."

Wayne R. Donahue, candidate for district attorney told the meeting that, if elected, he will make a thorough study of the district attorney's office with the view of operating it efficiently and as economically as possible. He renewed his pledge that Turner will be ousted as chief of county detectives if he becomes district attorney.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Philip Entinger. Mrs. Louise Henry, president of the Council, presided.

Greensburg Republicans will hold a steak fry and candidates' night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Anderson on Oct. 16. Local candidates for city and school board posts will speak and county candidates will be introduced. The affair will be in the nature of a Greensburg local rally.

An Example of Politics in Justice

THE CANONS of Judicial Ethics of the American Bar Association, a code to which most judges and courts throughout the United States subscribe, say that when a judge participates actively in partisan politics "suspicion of being warped by political bias will attach" to him and to his official decisions.

Westmoreland County has just witnessed a legal incident which seems to us to illustrate the truth of this principle.

We refer to the contest between Mayor Parente and John R. Stieska over the Republican nomination for mayor of Monessen which the state Supreme Court this week decided unanimously for Mr. Stieska.

This was an important test case, involving interpretation of the law with respect to write-in votes where voting machines are used. And we feel that Mayor Parente and Mr. Stieska performed a public service by securing a definitive decision from the highest court of the state.

But the history of the litigation is most interesting to anyone familiar with politics in Westmoreland County. And because the issue of judges participating in politics is now before the voters of the county in an election campaign, the proceedings and personalities in this case are both pertinent and revealing.

* * *

ORIGINALLY the county commissioners, sitting as the county election board, awarded the nomination to Mr. Parente. They did this on the advice of their solicitor, P. K. Jones, an active supporter of the courthouse political machine in which the mayor is a key figure. It was Mr. Jones' interpretation that the law with respect to write-in votes was different as between paper ballots and voting machines. The intent of the voter, he said in effect, did not count. What counted was whether the candidates' names were spelled correctly.

Mr. Stieska appealed this ruling to the president judge of common pleas court, Richard D. Laird, who although a loyal Democrat has generally been felt to have an independent streak. Judge Laird overruled the elections board, saying that the law had to be the same whether paper ballots or voting machines were in use. He gave the nomination to Mr. Stieska.

The Mayor then appealed to the court en banc, consisting of Judge Laird, Judge Charles D. Copeland, another Democrat of somewhat independent bent, and Judge John M. O'Connell, who is an active leader of the courthouse political machine, and a political judge in every sense of the term.

This court voted 2 to 1, Judges Laird and Copeland forming the majority. Judge O'Connell dissented and voted to give the nomination to Mr. Parente.

The Mayor then went to the Supreme Court. And the six justices who participated in the case unanimously upheld the county court with Chief Justice Charles Alvin Jones (a Democrat, incidentally) writing the opinion.

* * *

SO WHAT are we to think of Judge O'Connell's action in this case? Out of a total of nine judges who considered this fairly simple legal question, Judge O'Connell was the only one to come to a different conclusion.

In the light of Judge O'Connell's intense partisanship, don't we have to ask the question: Was he deciding the law or playing politics?

Only the judge himself, of course, can really answer that question in his own conscience. But the rest of us can hardly avoid recalling the words of the Canons of Ethics:

". . . Suspicion of being warped by political bias will attach to a judge who becomes the active promoter of the interests of one political party as against another."

So here is a concrete example of political justice dispensed by a political judge. Such a judge makes himself incapable of the impartiality which is one of the essential ingredients of real justice.

Yet the courthouse political machine is trying hard to put three political judges on the bench in this county for the next ten years. And all that can prevent this calamity is an understanding on the part of a majority of the voters of the terrible importance of keeping politics out of justice.

The backgrounds and affiliations of the three Democratic candidates, Judge Bauer, Judge David Weiss and District Attorney Alexander Sculco, are identical with those of Judge O'Connell. They are even refusing in their campaign to discuss the issue of judges in politics.

On the other side, the Republican candidates, Avra N. Pershing, Robert H. Rial and Willis E. Topper, have made an unequivocal pledge to take the courts out of politics and to refrain from political activity while serving as judges.

This, it seems to us, defines the choice about as clearly as it could possibly be defined for those voters who are weighing their decisions carefully.

Today and Tomorrow—

U. S. Must Help India In Crisis

By WALTER LIPPMANN

The Indian government has recently been making soundings in Washington with a view to a formal request in the fairly near future for a substantial loan. The Minister of Finance puts India's over-all needs at a credit in dollars, sterling and German marks of about $1 billion, of which India would actually need to draw down about $700 million over a period of some years before beginning to repay the debt. The American share of this loan could hardly be less than $500 million.

Mr. Lippmann

Evidently, a transaction of that size would require specific authorization from Congress. This congressional action would need to be taken fairly early in the next session of Congress — not later, it is said, than March when the Indian reserves of foreign exchange will have been run down to a critical point.

If this loan cannot be arranged, there will have to be a serious cutback in both private and public economic development in India.

Must Be Done

The task of persuading Congress to vote such a loan is, it might be said, one of those things which are impossible to do and yet have to be done. The prospects could hardly be more unfavorable. But, when the President has enabled the country to understand what is at stake, our people will, as they have done before, conclude that what is necessary, must be done.

Why must it be done? Because India is the supreme testing ground for all of Asia and of Africa of the question whether an undeveloped country can raise itself from extreme poverty by democratic, as against Communist, methods. If India succeeds in her present plans of development, it will have been proved that backward countries do not have to follow the example of Russia and of Red China.

If India fails, if her economic development is strangled, it will be a fateful moment in the history of the world. For it will have been proved by a practical test that the free world is not willing to make any substantial sacrifice in order to have freedom prevail.

President Should Explain

I have no doubt myself that what looks so difficult to do can nevertheless be done if the President, and his administration, take the trouble to explain thoroughly and patiently why it needs to be done.

India has a population which is more than twice as big as ours. She has a national income which is only about one-twentieth as large as ours. Her standard of living is one of the lowest in the world, and at the present level of development her resources are barely capable of keeping up with her terrifying growth in population.

The Indian government is a free government, based on free elections and the fundamental rights of a free society — freedom of religion, of thought and of speech — are carefully respected. The Indian government, which often differs with our own government in foreign policy, is nonetheless a free government, as free, it is fair to say, as any in the world of Asia.

It cannot, however, hope to survive on its adherence to ideals and principles alone. It must offer to the Indian people the hope that within the reasonably near future they will be emerging from their present poverty. If the Indian government cannot hold out that hope, there will surely be a reaction against liberty and towards a totalitarian system.

Plan of Investment

To meet the need of development, the Indian government has drawn up plans of investment, and it is now at the beginning of a second plan which calls for an investment of some ten to fifteen billion dollars in the course of a five-year period. This looks big. There are some experts who think it is too big. But the Indian problem is enormously big, and, even if the plan is carried out successfully, the best that can be hoped for is an increase of national income at the rate of five per cent a year.

This plan cannot, however, be carried out without capital assistance from abroad — capital assistance from private corporations, from the World Bank, from Britain, France, Germany and the United States. The question before this country, which will be critical by the time Congress convenes, is whether we can afford to let the Indian plan of development fail.

No doubt the question will be a most unwelcome one in the coming session of Congress, what with our high taxes, our tight money, our signs of recession, the painful prospects of the integration problem, and the general feeling of not doing very well abroad. Nevertheless, the country will listen to the President, and it will follow him if and when he shows that there is a vital interest of the country involved, when he shows where necessity drives us, and where duty calls.

Merry-Go-Round—

Soviet Moving Into Mideast

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Andrei Gromyko got his first introduction to Washington as the dour, uncommunicative Secretary of the Soviet Embassy on 16th St. He lived not far from the White House in the mansion once owned by Mrs. Pullman of the Pullman Car Co. whose president was Robert Todd Lincoln, son of Abe Lincoln. That residence, however, was Gromyko's only connection with American tradition.

Mr. Pearson

John Foster Fulles first saw Washington as a young adviser to his uncle, Robert Lansing, Secretary of State for Woodrow Wilson; his grandfather, John Foster, was Secretary of State in Benjamin Harrison's cabinet; and John Foster was steeped in American tradition. His great ambition was to become Secretary of State.

I do not know what Andrei Gromyko's ambition was, or whether a Communist bureaucrat is supposed to have ambition. But I do know that Gromyko eventually worked up the Communist ladder until he became Ambassador in that old Pullman mansion on 16th St., and later minister of foriegn affairs.

Situation Reversed

Simultaneously, John Foster Dulles had come from one of the oldest most renowned law firms on Wall Street to become a specialist in foreign affairs, then Secretary of State. Both men officially were equal, but unofficially Dulles was always able to talk to Gromyko from a position of prestige and power — and the prestige of his background and the power of having the H-bomb, the A-bomb, and the greatest air force in the world.

Last week, however, that situation was reversed. As these two men sat down in Dulles's colonial mansion overlooking Rock Creek, our Secretary of State found himself talking to a man whose country had developed the intercontinental ballistic missile, a new jet transport, and an earth satellite which electrified the world.

There could have been no worse time for Foster Dulles to have held talk. But he had to. Events in various parts of the world were slipping away from his government.

I do not know the specific details of what the two men talked about, but I do know that before they began talking this was what faced John Foster Dulles. This was why he asked Gromyko to sit down face to face.

1. The Turkish Ambassador had been calling at the State Department repeatedly to warn that Turkey was not going to stand still while Russia built up a vast arms base in Syria to the south, and kept a Russian fleet three times the size of the U. S. 6th Fleet to the north in the Black Sea.

2. Turkish Prime Minister Menderes hinted to the American Embassy in Ankara that Turkey might take things into its own hands regarding the big Russian arms base in Syria unless President Eisenhower makes a bold move to halt Russian expansion in the Near East.

3. The Lebanese government has informed the State Department in blunt and vigorous language that the Russian timetable is scheduled to take over all the Near East — within one year.

4. The Israeli government has told the State Department that there will be little use having a NATO army protecting Western Europe from Russia, if Russia takes over the Near East and can cut off oil to supply the NATO army, plus oil to supply the factories of Europe.

War Barely Averted

These ambassadors and prime ministers were not kidding.

When the Prime Minister of Turkey talked about moving in on Syria, the State Department knew he meant it. For, one month ago, Turkey almost marched on the Syrian city of Aleppo. And the American public never knew how close the Near East was to war in mid-September.

One reason the Turks didn't move is because they haven't been able to ruegatsnacfseo shermt able to get assurances from the United States of NATO support in case the Russian fleet started bombarding the Turkish coast in support of its satellite, Syria.

The State Department hasn't said yes, and it hasn't said no. It just hasn't said anything. It does not want to see our good friend and ally, Turkey, squeezed between a Russianized Syria on the south and the Russian fleet on the north. But at the same time it doesn't want to risk a world war.

That's one of the reasons John Foster Dulles had to talk with Andrei Gromyko.

Russian Timetable

The Russian timetable in the Near East has not been published, but Arab diplomats friendly to the west feel sure they know what it is.

It is first of all to consolidate Russian gains in Syria; develop airports, the harbor of Latakia, highways, irrigation projects; and make that country a model Arab state, completely dependent on Russia. Once Syria is certain of Russian support, here is the schedule.

A. Syria will work through agents in Jordan to assassinate or overthrow King Hussein. Then the new government of Jordan will propose a union with Syria. Since this will be an internal move, not foreign aggression, it won't come under the Eisenhower Doctrine. We couldn't intervene.

B. Six months later, King Saud will be assassinated. He was nearly assassinated last spring and another attempt on his life was made last month. Crown Prince Faisal, the King's brother, who doesn't particularly like the King, will succeed him and move for unity with Syria.

C. The tiny country of Lebanon, half Christian, half Moslem, will be relatively easy to take over next.

D. Iraq, bigger, richer, and a member of the Baghdad Pact will be tougher to absorb, but the Russian timetable calls for it to be annexed to Syria in about 18 months.

More Oil for Soviet

If that timetable is followed, the Near East, which holds 70 per cent of the world's known oil reserves, falls into Russian hands. With it will eventually go domination of northern and central Africa, with the uranium of the Belgian Congo. This would put the Suez Canal virtually under Russian control, together with two pipelines across Syria.

Israel would be the one democratic outpost of the west in a Russianized Arab world — if she can hold out.

These were some of the reasons why John Foster Dulles considered it imperative to talk with Foreign Minister Gromyko. He was prepared to talk tough — to talk from the background of his vast experience as an international lawyer and grandson of a Secretary of State; with the power and prestige of the United States behind him. He hoped to draw a line in the Near East beyond which Russia could not go without risking direct action from the United States.

But he could not talk tough. For Gromyko's country now had the ICBM, and just one night before had launched man's first break with the earth.

It's a Fact—

Nepal charges mountain climbers admission fee of $630 to assault 29,028-foot Mount Everest, the "National Geographic" magazine says. Anyone attempting to scale 26,811-foot Dhaulagiri, the earth's highest known unconquered peak, must pay the same; but lower peaks may be tackled for bargain prices.

National Affairs—

Knowland Would Curb Power of Big Labor

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP)—Out there in California unsmiling Sen. William F. Knowland is talking about maybe using trust-buster methods to prevent monopoly in organized labor.

That's news because Knowland may be heading for the White House.

Mr. Wilson

There have been complaints that big organized labor can be a monopoly just like big business. Knowland is campaigning toward next year's GOP nomination for governor of California. He is opposed by Republican Gov. Goodwin J. Knight who was elected in 1954 with labor's endorsement.

Knowland is regarded as the spokesman of the Taft wing or Taft point of view in the Republican Party, the Taft being the late Sen. Robert A., of Ohio.

In Taft Tradition

Knowland's approach to the problem posed by the great power, prestige, influence and wealth of organized labor is in the Taft tradition. It was Taft in the 80th Congress who spurned chairmanship of the choice Senate Finance Committee, preferring to preside over the Senate Labor Committee. Out of that decision came the Taft-Hartley Act.

Taft proved that it need not be political suicide to buck organized labor. The labor leaders ganged up on him with men and money when the senator sought re-election in 1950. The drive of the labor effort against Taft was without precedent. Taft won, carrying all but three or four counties. He won every industrial county in the state.

Knowland probaly knows all about that. He has proposed now that California enact a right-to-work bill which would outlaw compulsory union membership. The recent California convention of the AFL resolved to raise a political fund big enough to beat the bill.

Proposes "Rights" Bill

The senator followed up with "a bill of rights for labor." He said he might expand that to include application of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act to unions on the same basis as it applies to corporations.

The bill of labor rights would provide for election and recall of union officers; for strike calls by secret ballot; administration of union welfare funds would be made subject to state insurance laws; strict accountability for union dues and initiation funds; protection of members against unfair and retaliatory action by union officers; prevention of self-perpetuation of union officers in their jobs.

Knowland has his eye on the White House. He may put his labor policies in the Republican presidential platform of 1960 or 1964.

New York-Rome Trip Points up Contrasts

By DOC QUIGG

ROME (UP)—All roads lead here, including a new skyload which a few of us intrepid adventurers pioneered with the aid and inspiration of the mayor of Rome, in person, plus the strength of 13,600 horses built into four airplane engines.

Opening non-stop service between New York and Rome, Pan American Airways hauled the mayor and assorted Roman bigwigs, along with the regular tourist trade, 4,600 miles in 13 hours, 7 minutes.

That's a huge hop—from Nervous City to Eternal City—a quick transition that leaves you blinking in wonder among the ruins of the vestal virgins and the catacombs We managed to make the maiden voyage with only two speeches, both by the mayor of course, on departure and on arrival. Bands played. Ribbons were snipped. Wine flowed like the Tiber at floodstage.

You leave New York at eventide, and you can go to sleep after dinner and wake up over the Alps approaching Rome. Which is what I did, and immediately went aft to interview the mayor, Umberto Tupini.

Impressed by Speed

He's a little man with a mighty Roman nose, jaunty bearing, friendly personality. He said he never had been in New York before and that his first impression was of fast movement, organization, and massiveness.

"The people in the street was not folling around — everybody knew where he was going," he said. "In Rome there is not that rush, that not-wasting - time, that you see in New York. They are two different standards of life."

It is true that the pedestrian in Rome is a saunterer and the pedestrian in New York is a nervous-Nellie hurrier. But they have something in common: jaywalking. They both seem to enjoy it immensely. New York has announced it will launch a pedestrian safety drive, to be climaxed with a law that may threaten prison for jaywalkers

The trouble with that plan is that many New York pedestrians would rather go to prison than be deprived of the sheer joy of darting among speeding autos in the middle of the block.

Less Bounce To The Jounce

The Rome jaywalkers do have a certain advantage over their brothers in New York. They do not bounce as far when struck. The Roman traffic is more helter-skelter than New York's, but the automobiles do not have nearly the tonnage of American cars and hence don't pack as much sock against pedestrians. They're tiny European models.

I told the Mayor that the last time I had interviewed a mayor was in Hiroshima, Japan, where the mayor has, on display in a case in his office, a baseball autographed by the great Bambino Ruth. Asked whether he had some such memento of his trip to America, Mayor Tupini, produced an old-time ship's clock given him by Pan American, possibly as a reminder of how things have changed from clipper ship to clipper plane days.

Mayor Tupini said every American he ever had spoken with had "a great love for Italy, and especially Rome." He was quite happy that American tourist traffic to Rome is increasing.

Mindful that the behavior of our tourists has been criticized, and that lately the U.S. government has been slipping try-to-be - nice advice into passports, I mean to find out what's what. Tomorrow I'm going to take a rubberneck bus and observe American tourism first hand.

Few Games for Phil to Pick

Although taking it on the chin but good in his three wrong guesses Phil Fumble can cancel his reservation on the Sputnik (Russian satellite, in case you didn't know) with his eight correct choices out of the 11 games played from the original 15 he selected last week. Fumble's 8-3 chart gave him a season record of 40-16 for a .714 average. Without further ado here he goes with this week's games: (What there is left of them)—AMBRIDGE at Charleroi; Baldwin at UNIONTOWN; WEST NEWTON at East Huntingdon; Georges at NORTH UNION; WAYNESBURG at South Union; Beth Joint at ELLSWORTH; Centerville at PERRY; Mapletown at CARMICHAELS; Munhall at CLAIRTON.

Here's a cute story we got from a Belle Vernon reader. It seems Judge Sammy Weiss, familiar to practically all sports fans even if youdon't follow polictics or judiary procedure, joined the Baldoc Country Club not too long ago . . . He wanted to show his professional friends (doctors, lawyers, judges, etc.) that he was quite adept as a golfer and went out everyday for a few swings but was having bad luck . . . One particular day he was digging himself a pretty fair hole in attempting a drive when he remarked to his caddy, "I'm pretty lousy as a golfer, huh? . . . The caddy replied, "Heck, yeh, you're even worse than Judge Weiss." . . . Some time later Judge Weiss treated all the caddies to a ball game at Pittsburgh . . . When the chartered bus arrived at Forbes Field and Judge Weiss met the bus at the appointed place the talkative caddy refused to get off when he recognized the Judge but Sammy, a former Duquesne U. quarterback, cornered the lad and said, "Come on, son, all is forgiven, I admire you for telling the truth."

No World Series Flu- Furio

Monessen High School Principal Henry Furio wants to go on record as stating that "the recent flu epidemic at Monessen schools was defenitely a flu epidemic and had nothing to do with the World Series as has been suggested." . . . "We checked all recreational facilities in the city when the absenteeism was so high and found none of our students at those particular places," he added . . . Furio also stated that a look at the stands on the student's side the night of the Monessen-Uniontown game would have proven that many students were ill or they would have been at the game . . . Postponing the Bellmar-Elizabeth-Forward game ruined a homecoming for former Marion coach Bill Benedetti, now an assistant to head coach Tony Rubino at E-F.

Ben Anolik, the well-known Pittsburgh boxing promoter is really beating the drums for the Bob Satterfield-Garvin Sawyer bout at the Enright Theater on Monday, Oct. 21. . . . Jersey Joe Walcott is training Sawyer, promising 21-year-old heavy who has a 13-3 record and he is being managed by Tom Tannas, former pilot of heavy champ Ezzard Charles . . . Satterfield has never boxed in Pittsburgh for the last time a bout was arranged for the Steel City, Commissioner Paul Sullivan cancelled the bout ruling that opponent Emil Britko was not experienced enough to meet such a pugged vet as Satterfield, who possesses a powerful punch but a glass jaw.

Al Dunn, of New Kensington High School has been elected the new president of the Westmoreland County Coaches Association with Dan Karanovic of Trafford, vice president; James McLea of Jeannette secretary-treasurer; and John Bruno of Sewickley Twp., trustee . . . Governor George Leader of Pennsylvania has warned all hunters to take extra care this season to avoid the accident record of last year when 30 Pennsylvania hunters met death and 446 others were injured. Most such accidents occur through carelessness . . . So, be careful — See what you are shooting before pulling the trigger—don't fire at everything that moves.

Bauer in Record Book On His 'Biggest Hit'

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)—Hank Bauer rolled into the record books today on "the biggest hit of my life"—and was looking for an even bigger one as the all-even Yankees and Braves squared off in the final game of the World Series.

The ex-Marine who is known to his mates as "Scrap Iron" pulled the Yankees off the floor in the seventh inning Wednesday with a home run which was fair by a matter of inches. It struck on the left field foul pole and gave Bob Turley a 3-2 lead with which he won the ball game.

It marked the 13th consecutive World Series game in which the one-time machine-gunner had hit safely, tieing a record held by Frank Schulte of the Cubs and Harry Hooper of the Red Sox.

Disproves Sidearm Jinx

And when he teed off on Ernie Johnson, it also put a big dent in the long-held theory that Hank can't hit side-arm pitching. Because it was one of those free-wheeling side-arm deliveries which Bauer pulled down the left field line.

"The biggest hit of my life," he chuckled gleefully. "But I thought for a while it was going to be foul. Even when I saw it hit the screen I wasn't sure it was a home run but figured maybe it was just a double. I was surprised when the umpire waved me on around.

"But I'll sure take it," he added as an after-thought.

Bauer, who looks a lot like golfer Tommy Bolt, thus teamed with another of the Yankees' old pros—Yogi Berra—to pull it out of the fire for Turley. Because it was Yogi's two-run blast in the third inning that put the Yankees into a two-run lead which Turley dissipated with home run balls to Frank Torre and Hank Aaron.

A Try Guy

But the laurels, along with kudos for Turley, had to go to Hank and the hit that wrapped it up. And the Yankees were particularly happy that it happened to a guy who gives everything he has every moment he's on the ball field.

Hank is the guy who runs everything out and charges from start to finish. He doesn't know how to ease up and it was this determination, almost as much as his ability, which finally took him out of the minors.

It was a long pull for the 195-pound six-footer from East St. Louis, Ill., who now lives in Overland Park, a Kansas City suburb. Because after one year at Oshkosh, Hank spent the next four years in the Marines. Coming back, he picked up at Quincy and then spent two hopeful years at Kansas City before finally making the grade with the Yanks.

An Old Pro

Since then he has been one of the solid men of the team, one of the nucleus of old pros around whom the Yankees juggle their constant stream of fresh talent. This is his eighth World Series, which makes him something of an expert at this post-season business, and he tied the steady-hitting record by hitting safely in all seven games against the Dodgers last year and in all six so far this time around.

"Now for the seventh," he says. "It would be nice to get a hit today and hold the record. But I'd go hitless if it would mean we would win."

Which, it might be added, is the only way "Scrap Iron" knows how to play.

Marion Juniors Club Fallowfield by 26-12

Coach Harry Muckle's Marion Junior High eleven surprised the Fallowfield Township gridders, 26-12 at Marion yesterday afternoon to get on the victory trail after two losses.

Finishing strong the Little Generals scored three touchdowns and a safety in the last half after a 6-6 first half.

Marion's first half score in the second period came on a 60-yard pass play with Alex Krill, who scored two TDs in the last Marion game with Perry, carrying the aerial over after receiving it from fullback Joe Ercegovich.

Fallowfield roared back to tie with the help of a 15-yard penalty which put the ball on the Marion five. A short while later ace back Harry Burgess crashed over from the two.

Another Marion Score

The fourth quarter found Marion tallying again when sub quarterback John Daniels sneaked over from the one. In the third period Ercegovich and tackle George Trenk dumped Fallowfield fullback Rielly in the end zone on a double - reverse attempt for two more markers.

Ercegovich made it 20-6 in the final period when he circled end for 15 yards into paydirt. Later Roger Williams, halfback, scored on the last play of the third perid on a sensational 65-yard pass interception.

Fallowfield's second touchdown came in the final minute of the game when sub Bill Mceeley took a pass from Quarterback Gottheld into paydirt.

Rookies Star in Opening Games of New AHL Season

By UNITED PRESS

Providence, defending regular-season champion, scored late in the third period to edge Springfield, 5-4; Rochester nipped Buffalo by the same count and Hershey beat Cleveland, 4-3.

Rookies played a major part in all three games. Eddie Shack, top scorer in the Ontario Hockey Assn. last year, drove home the winning goal for Providence with little more than two minutes remaining in the game. Rookie Bruce Carmichael also tallied for the Reds.

Ken Girard, playing in his first game for Rochester, accounted for two goals, including the decisive one at 14:19 of the final period. Ace Lilley, first-year man with Buffalo, tallied twice but in a losing cause.

Len Haley, up from Brandon of the Western League, scored the goal that put Hershey out in front for good in its battle with Cleveland.

Hempfield Next If Redstone Can't Play Next Friday

You couldn't blame Monessen High School officials for talking to themselves today as they attempt to figure out what to do with the 1957 'Hound football schedule.

Yesterday it was announced that the Brownsville game, originally carded for tomorrow night had been switched to Monday night But this morning came word from Brownsville that the Brownies could not possibly be ready for the Monday game.

Efforts were then made to have Hempfield, whose game with the '57 Hounds was postponed last week, replace the Brownies but flu has closed the Hempfield School. The next alternative was Redstone, as a game with Donora this week was cancelled by the Dragons but this morning the flu hit the Republic school and that school was closed.

Hempfield Next Week?

So, as of press time today, efforts are being made to card the Hempfield game for next Friday night if Redstone is not ready for a game. The Brownsville game will be played at the first suitable date for both the Brownies and the locals.

Meanwhile, Coach Armand Niccolai of the Greyhounds reports his squad in excellent shape with only Andy Carollo still weak enough from the flu to miss practice.

Last night at least 35 players reported for drills, as high as at any previous sessions this season.

"We've been able to have scrimmage sessions this week, "Nick" stated, "and that's the first time in a couple of weeks"

Only one line-up change is contemplated for the 'Hounds if a game is played within a week. Tom Churan, injured in the Uniontown game will not be able to return to his center slot unless the postponements go on indefinitely. Senior Lou Gigliotti will replace Churan at the pivot post.

Another change may find George Guibourdanche at an end post in place of Paul Tobacco who is also having trouble completely shaking the effects of the flu.

Larsen Against Burdette in Drama-packed Series Finale

By LEO H. PETERSEN

NEW YORK (UP) — It's the man who pitched the perfect game against the man with the "perfect pitch" today when the "big city" Yankees and the "rural America" Braves wind up the 1957 World Series.

Don (Perfect Game) Larsen vs Lew Burdette; Casey Stengel trying for a record - tieing seventh world championship and Fred Haney trying for his first; the Yankees trying to save a measure of New York's baseball honor and the Braves trying to make the Milwaukee dream come true, that is the drama that'll be unfolding before some 68,000 fans at Yankee Stadium.

At game time, the Yankees were to be favored at 7-5, whether it is Larsen vs Burdette or Whitey Ford for the Yankees.

All square at three games each after the Yankees won Wednesday's 3-2 squeaker, both teams come down to the "big one" with key men suffering from physical ailments. The Yankees are unlikely to get anything but spot duty from sluggers Mickey Mantle and Bill Skowron and the Braves probably won't have the services of sparkplug Red Schoendienst and might be without those of pitcher Warren Spahn, a 21-game winner.

Another Redeeming Feat?

In Larsen, the Yankees are going with an erratic, hard-throwing right hander who reached the pinnacle of World Series fame last Oct. 8 when he pitched his perfect game against the Brooklyn Dodgers. It was the only such performance in World Series history and the first perfect game in the majors since 1922. But, despite that epic performance, Larsen proved to be a disappointment in the American League this season and wound up with a 10-4 record.

In a very real sense, he's out to redeem another lack-lustre year with another tremendous single-game performance.

Burdette, the 30-year-old one-time Yankee farmhand who went to the Braves in the 1951 deal for Johnny Sain, never has come close to a perfect game—but he's got his own "perfect pitch." It's undoubtedly nothing more than an exceptionally good sinker but his rivals insist it could be a spitter — and Burdette's made it his "pitch" to keep 'em guessing.

In an equally real sense, he too can "redeem" himself in the eyes of the baseball world by proving he's 100 per cent pitcher and not a single bit "cheater."

Bullpens Will Be Full

Both managers will have everything they've got waiting in the bullpen. Stengel will have Ford, his ace and the Yankees' opening-game victor as his No. 1 reliever, and all the others will be on call, too, because it's a long rest coming up until next April 16. Haney's No. 1 reliever will be Spahn, unless the 36-year-old southpaw turns up sick again, and the others will be warming up at the slightest crisis too.

Stengel, who's really only a little city boy who made it in the big city, can tie the all-time record of seven world titles held by Joe McCarthy by winning today. He has won eight pennants in nine years in an unparalleled success story beginning in 1949.

For Haney, the experience would be completely new. It was only in mid-season that Milwaukee fans were burning him in effigy.

'Save-face' Victory Tops in Turley's Baseball Career

NEW YORK (UP) — Baby-face Bob Turley, who saved the Yankees from oblivion with a victory that was "tops" in his baseball career, stood ready today to help out in the big payoff game because he isn't a bit tired.

"Yes sir," bubbled the big fireball pitcher. "Yesterday's win was comparatively easy and if Casey (Stengel) needs me for a little while today, I'm ready.

"Not that the Braves were easy," Turley added hastily. "I don't mean it that way. They were tough, and I couldn't pick out which one was the toughest—there aren't any of 'em you can ease up on.

"I mean, it was comparatively easy because it was a quick game in which I didn't have to throw too many pitches," he explained, and added with a gay laugh. "You know, any game in which I don't have to throw 170 pitches is an easy game for me."

Turley said that a "sinker ball" got him out of the ninth inning just when it seemed he was headed for deep trouble. He had opened the nervous ninth by walking Eddie Mathews. But then he fanned slugger Hank Aaron on three pitches—his eighth strikeout of the game—and got Wes Covington to end the game by bouncing into a lightning pitcher-to-short-stop-to-first double play.

"The third strike on Aaron and the ball that Covington hit into the D.P. both were sinker balls," Turley said. "They did it."

"It was my first World Series win, so it has to be the greatest, doesn't it?" he asked. "It was tops."

That's what the Yankees think, too.

Steelers Sent Through Tricky Running Plays

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Pittsburgh Steelers coach Buddy Parker put his charges through intricate running plays Wednesday in preparation for Sunday's game with the Chicago Cardinals.

Parker also worked on plays involving passes tossed by Earl Morrall, but the emphasis was on running.

Part-time coach Bill McPeak participated in the session and said he thought he would be ready to play Sunday at defensive end.

The Steelers were getting primed to face speed merchant Ollie Matson who broke all Cardinal ball - carrying records last year. Ollie, always rated a tough opponent, has not been up to his usual stature this year. When he reported to camp, he had been ill and had lost weight.

However, the tough Cardinal back figured to make a showing soon, since he is now almost up to his ideal playing weight of approximately 205 pounds.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

One . . Two . . Three . .

Exercises can help anyone's golf game. I don't mean just practice swings — I mean actual exercising.

Today's drawing shows a player exercising his left wrist. He's holding his left wrist straight and is swinging the club back and forth, close to the ground. In this way, he will strengthen his left wrist, making it more equal in power to his right wrist.

Practice this motion often enough and you'll find it natural to keep your left wrist straight, or uncocked, as you start the backswing. It can't miss! Try this exercise every once in a while—perhaps before you start your next round, if you have a few minutes to wait. Take it from me; it will help.

Yanks 7-5 Choice To Take Series

NEW YORK (UP) — Broadway oddsmakers made the Yankees 6½-7½-5 favorites to beat the Milwaukee Braves today and win the 1957 World Series.

In man-to-man betting it would be 7-5 in favor of the Yankees. In betting with a bookie, it meant the Yankee rooter had to put up $7.50 to win $5; the Milwaukee rooter, if the Braves win, would get $6.50 for his $5 bet.

The oddsmakers, after first giving slightly differing odds dependent upon whether Don Larsen or Whitey Ford pitches for New York, then changed to make the odds 6½-7½ no matter which man pitches.

Blaik Worried About Saturday's 'Big One'; Flu Hits Three Irish

By JOE SARGIS

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UP) — Coach Earl Blaik wouldn't say so in as many words, but he was plainly worried today about Army's first game with Notre Dame in 10 years.

The Cadets, who have surprised Blaik as well as most Eastern observers with their play thus far this season, resume the tradition-laden series Saturday when they tackle Notre Dame, an old opponent from bygone years, in Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium.

"We have a lot of thinking to do between now and Saturday," Blaik said. "They're 100 per cent improved over last year and don't forget they have yet to be scored on."

The Irish, who hold a 23-7 edge over the Cadets in their long and colorful series which began in 1913 and continued for 34 years until 1947, shut out Purdue, 12-0, two weeks ago and then whipped Indiana, 26-0 last Saturday.

Has Strong Line

Army has done equally as well in its first two starts, routing Nebraska, 42-0 and coming from behind to beat Penn State, 27-13. The Black Knights, without a "class" quarterback in three years, have a good one in experienced Dave Bourland along with halfback Pete Dawkins and fullback Bin Barta.

Up front, the Cadets are strong with a big rugged line, anchored by center Jim Kernan, guard Stan Slater and end Bill Graf. The line averages 205 pounds per man, slightly bigger than Notre Dame's line which Coach Terry Brennan credits for the Irish's good showing thus far.

100,000 Crowd

Sophomore halfbacks Bob Anderson and Steve Waldrop, forced out of the Penn State game, both will be ready for duty Saturday when the Cadets take the field before an expected crowd of 100,000. Despite Blaik's pessimism, Army has been made a one-point favorite, mostly because it has demonstrated it can score on the ground and through the air.

Notre Dame, on the other hand, boasts a rugged defense but can't match Army's all-around attack. Bob Williams, a junior quarterback who improves with each game, still hasn't reached the class of great Notre Dame quarterbacks and the Irish must depend mostly on a ground game.

Flu Hits Irish

To make matters worse for the Irish, four players were hit with the flu, but not of the Asian variety. They were halfback Dick Lynch, guard Jim Schaaf and end Gary Myers from the first team and second string center Dave Hurd. However, all were expected to suit up for the Army game. Ed Sullivan and Aubrey Lewis were labelled doubtful starters because of ankle injuries.

Elsewhere in the East Saturday, Penn is at Princeton, Brown is at Dartmouth and Columbia is at Yale in Ivy League action. Pittsburgh hosts traveling Nebraska. Rutgers is at Colgate, Syracuse is at Cornell, Penn State hosts William and Mary, Ohio U. is at Harvard, Dayton is at Boston College, and West Virginia is at Boston U.

Pitt's Prince Advised to Give Up Grid Sport

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Pitt halfback Pete Prince was ordered off the football squad Wednesday for the remainder of the season as a precautionary measure. He has suffered headaches since last Friday's game with Southern California.

Dr. W. K. Smith, the Panther physician, said Prince had been detained at Mercy Hospital since last Saturday for observation. He will remain at the hospital until this coming Saturday, Smith said.

The chunky, 22-year-old junior, half Cherokee Indian, played in only the one game this year after sitting out all of last year on the bench. However, he was rated highly for his steadiness and application.

"Pete would have played a lot of ball for us this year," coach John Michelosen said.

Price, following Dr. Smith's decision to sideline him for the remainder of the seasor, said he was feeling fine and hoped he could still play this year.

The Panthers continued practice sessions Wednesday in preparation for Saturday's game with Nebraska at Pitt Stadium.

DeJohn Kayoes Miteff in First

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UP) — Mike DeJohn, jubilant over a first-round knockout of seventh-ranking contender Alex Miteff, said today, "I'm all set for a Nov. 8 return match."

Billy Brown, International Boxing Club matchmaker, said DeJohn agreed to the rematch as the "only sportsmanlike move." Brown said he expected Miteff's manager, Hyman (The Mink) Wallman, to approve the bout scheduled for Syracuse.

"Last night's win was easy," the 204-pound DeJohn said. "So easy I couldn't believe it."

The Syracuse boxer sent the 202-pound Argentine pride to the canvas with a lighning left hook after a rain of lefts and rights.

State Plans Game of 'Jacks' For W-M Tilt

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UP) — Air - minded Penn State today planned a game of "Jacks" for its Saturday meeting with William & Mary.

Nittany Lion Coach Rip Engle rested his hope of victory on 22-year-old quarterback Al Jacks, who already has equalled an all-time Penn State mark for successful passes in a single game.

The junior from Pittsburgh completed 17 passes in 32 tries for 166 yards against Army last week. He pitched one of the Lions' touchdowns and directed the other as Penn State was going down 27-13 before the Cadets.

In the opener against Penn, Jacks completed seven passes in 13 attempts for 79 yards to lead State to a 19-14 victory.

"Jacks definitely established himself as a sound quarterback and a brilliant passer," Engle said.

The head coach refused as "unfair" to compare Jacks with either Milt Plum, Penn State's outstanding quarterback of last year, or Tony Rado, who set the Penn State single-game mark of 17 completed passes in 1952 against Purdue, a battle that ended in a 21-all tie.

But Engle conceded that Jacks is "further along now" than either Rado or Plum were as juniors.

"Rado and Plum were primarily passers. Jacks also is a strong runner. He handles his position well on defense and is an adequate kicker," Engle said.

The six-foot, 187-pound education major has confined his running to sneak plays or to avoid being trapped by onrushing linemen. He carried 10 times for 23 yards.

Rooting for him against the Indians will be another Penn State "Junior" — a boxer dog named "Caesar." The dog came to Penn State with Jacks three years ago, rooms with him in a fraternity house, joins him at classes and yelps along the sidelines on Saturdays.

"We hope he stays on the sidelines," one Penn State official confided. "All we need is a penalty for 12 players on the field."

Game Commission to Get Wild Turkey Data

The Game Commission will this fall gather sex and age data from wild turkeys bagged in Pennsylvania. It is thought that information on the composition of the kill may become increasingly important in the future management of this valuable game bird. When the actual weight of such trophies is available it also will be recorded. Game Protectors will assist the Commission's field biologists in collecting and recording this information while on routine in-season duties this fall.

The identifying markings and characteristics of the gobbler and hen are offered here as a guide for hunters who are unable to determine the sex and age of wild turkeys brought to bag.

Sex differences: The male's breast feathers have black tips. His spurs are large "buttons" the first year and are one-half inch long or longer on older birds. The female's breast feathers are tipped a chocolate brown, and her spurs are merely buttons no matter what her age.

Age differences: The central pairs of tail feathers of the juvenile are longer than the others when the tail is spread. The beard of the male seldom extends beyond the breast feathers. The feet and legs are grayish-brown in color. In the adult bird all tail feathers are the same length when the tail is spread. The beard of the male extends well beyond the breast feathers. The feet and legs are pink in color.

Basing his prophesy on a kind of "barometer" wildlife officers use, a Potter County Game Protector, named Rozell Stidd, offers this opinion:

"No complaint of bear damage to bees, livestock or farm crops has come to me this year. So the prospect of a good bear harvest in my district this fall appears slim. Natural foods for wildlife in this sector are scarce, and so are bears."

All-out Fund Drive Held by Local Firemen

An all-out drive for funds is being conducted by the Fayette City Fire Department.

Letters to local organizations, to residents and handbills have been used to make this campaign a big success.

The appeal states that the truck is over 10 years old, needs new tires badly. The new combined fire station-borough building, built several years ago on a 50-50 basis, is not paid for. The local share of the Fayette County-wide radio system is not paid for. Uniforms, coats and boots are in bad condition and numerous miscellaneous items are needed to bring its equipment up to a high standard.

Already several organizations have responded with sizeable contributions.

Master Spy Is Spared Chair; Faces Sentence

NEW YORK (UP)—Master spy Jack Soble, guilty of a crime that could have meant the electric chair, today faced a relatively light term of seven years for conspiracy.

Soble, 55, evaded the more serious charge of espionage by pleading guilty to conspiracy. He told Federal Judge Richard H. Levet last week he would never be able to forgive himself for the 15 years he spent as U.S. boss of a Soviet espionage ring.

Levet, taking into account Soble's remorse and the aid he has given in uncovering other spy activity, Tuesday imposed the comparatively light sentence

At the same time, Levet cut the 5½ year terms imposed earlier on Soble's aides, his wife, Myra, and Jacob Albam.

Mrs. Soble, 52, pleaded she was only a wife doing what her husband asked Her term was cut to four years, but her request for probation was denied. Albam, 64, complained he was old and sick. His sentence was reduced to five years.

All three were exposed by former Hollywood director and composer Boris Morros, himself an American counterspy for 10 years They were arrested together Jan 25 and pleaded guilty to conspiring to transmit U.S. military, economic and government secrets to Russia.

Clark Talking About Power

COLOMBO, Ceylon (UP) — William Clark, controversial former U.S. chief justice in postwar Germany, died of a heart attack while on vacation here, it was reported today.

Clark was vacationing with his wife at Nuwheraeliya. She was at his side when he died.

Clark was 66. He was born in Newark, N.J, son of the founder of the Clark thread mills.

Clark was appointed chief justice of the Court of Appeals of the U.S. military government in Germany in 1948. He held that post until 1953 when he was dismissed in the climax of a long feud with then U.S. High Commissioner James B. Conant.

The controversy involved the question of court jurisdiction. In November of 1953, Clark was ordered to return to Washington for "consultations." He refused and staged a sit-down strike in his Frankfurt chambers but finally returned home and was informed by the U.S. State Department that his appointment to the court would not be renewed.

Resemblance to Truman Brings Punch on Chin

GRAND HAVEN, Mich. (UP)— Pharmacist John Poest took it on the chin Wednesday because he resembles former President Truman.

Poest said he was flagged down by a motorist who looked at him closely and asked, "You're Harry Truman, aren't you?"

"Yes," replied Poest as he stuck out his hand, "and how is the Democratic Party out your way."

The motorist answered with a punch in the nose.

Poest quickly rolled up the car window. But the motorist kept pounding on the door and windows until Poest drove off. Poest reported the incident to the Ottawa County sheriff's office and Pascal Catron, 36, an itinerant farmer from Cincinnati, was arrested a short time later.

Sheriff Gerald Vanderbeek said he was holding Catron for a mental exam.

Pearson Fresh from Middle East

Drew Pearson, The Daily Independent's famed Washington columnist, is coming to Monessen next week fresh from a personal survey of the most serious of the world's trouble spots — the Middle East.

Pearson will address the annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce at Twin Coaches next Tuesday evening. Traditionally one of the outstanding civic events of Western Pennsylvania, the banquet is expected to draw a crowd of over 500.

The noted author of the Washington Merry-Go-Round returned from the Middle East last weekend. He visited Greece, Lebanon, Syria, Jordan and Israel.

At Amman, capital of the desert kingdom of Jordan, Pearson had an exclusive personal interview with young King Hussein.

The columnist also visited with Prime Minister Karamanlis of Greece and with President Ben-Gurion of Israel. The city of Athens, Greece, made Pearson an honorary citizen.

He spent several days at sea with the U. S. Sixth Fleet, then on maneuvers in the Mediterranean, getting a close look at this advance arm of America's defenses.

Pearson's address here is expected to include an up-to-date summary of conditions in the touchy Middle East as he saw them on his trip.

Harry R. Pore Jr., editor of The Daily Independent, will introduce Pearson at the dinner.

Pearson reviews the Sixth U. S. Fleet with its commander, Adm. Charles R. Brown, from the bridge of the supercarrier Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Real Little Rock Issue Not Nine Negroes; Test Is Being Made There

By LOUIS CASSELS

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP) — The real issue in Little Rock is not the admission of nine Negro students to Central High School.

It is whether, when and how all of the public schools of the South shall be integrated.

Both sides know that this has become a test case which will set a precedent of far-reaching importance. The reason why President Eisenhower and Gov. Orval E. Faubus can't agree on terms for withdrawing federal troops is that they have exactly opposite ideas of what the precedent should be.

Eisenhower believes Little Rock must demonstrate the readiness of the United States government to use whatever force may be necessary to prevent violence from blocking the final decrees of a federal court.

Faubus believes the nation will learn from Little Rock that the "forcible integration" of a southern school can be accomplished only by sending federal troops to the scene and keeping them there for a very long time. He thinks the White House will find it impractical to pay this price.

That is why Faubus is playing a waiting game, making no move to renew negotiations with Eisenhower for troop withdrawal. He is convinced that time is on his side and that federal authority cannot claim a victory in Little Rock unless or until Eisenhower finds a way to get the troops out of this city.

Eisenhower realizes, after two abortive attempts to negotiate with the governor, that Faubus has no intention of giving one pledge that would permit the early withdrawal of federal forces.

That pledge would be to use the National Guard, when it is returned to state control, to protect the nine Negro youths from any violence as they attend classes at Central High.

The President now is counting on the forces of moderation, now being mobilized in Little Rock by church, business and civic leaders. He is hopeful that their efforts, including a city-wide prayer service to be held next Saturday, will create a climate in which local authorities, backed up by the majority of law-abiding citizens, can cope with any threat of violence.

Once Washington is persuaded that moderates are in control of the situation, the paratroopers of the 101st Airborne Division may be sent back to Fort Campbell, Ky.

The Arkansas National Guard could be held under federal control for a while after the paratroopers leave, with some of its units mobilized at nearby Camp Robinson on quick call.

The departure of troops from Central High would not mean that the federal government was pulling down its guard entirely.

There is another army in Little Rock—an army of FBI agents, possibly the largest group of them ever assembled for an assignment of this kind. They will keep a close watch on Central High School long after the troops are gone.

If trouble develops, the government will move swiftly in the federal courts to obtain injunctions against the mob leaders.

Anyone who violated such an injunction could be arrested and imprisoned for criminal contempt. A federal judge can try a criminal contempt case very quickly; no jury is necessary.

This is Washington's present strategy, according to competent sources here.

Like all strategy, it may be upset by what the other side does. Its most vulnerable point would appear to be the assumption that Little Rock's moderates, belatedly organized, will be able to clamp the lid on the Pandora's box of racial passion which has been opened here.

How to buy "vitamins"

Door-to-door peddlers are around now, selling vitamin preparations and nutritional supplements. The talk is mighty convincing. But, remember, talk won't do a thing for you. There's only one way to be sure of what vitamin you need if any are needed at all. That is to see your family physician. He and he alone is qualified to prescribe for you. Always buy vitamins or nutritional supplements from a registered pharmacist. Then you'll know what you're getting—and you'll get your money's worth.

Michigan Restaurant Is Noted for Fine Foods

A food travelogue of Michigan and nearby states on the east and south would not be complete without a visit to Schuler's in Marshall, Mich. The tavern which with numerous additions houses this well-known restaurant has been in the same family for many a long year.

It still functions as an inn, and traveling salesmen make every effort to get there for the night and particularly for the food. Win Schuler is responsible for developing the food service for which visitors are perfectly willing to drive many miles. The excellent quality of the meals is fully appreciated, as are the comparatively moderate prices.

The menus are large and each item is described fully. For instance, under roasts one finds "thick, juicy roast prime ribs of beef (rare, if desired)" and "roast lean top sirloin of beef (cooked well done)." The weight of the individual steaks is listed with the price. Among the specialties are seafood platters and that Michigan special, broiled northern lakes whitefish.

With all of these, one may have a choice of "baked Idaho potato with sour cream and chives" or "shoestring potatoes." There are five salads from which to choose. The deserts are extra, but resonable in price. One of the conveniences, especially appreciated by the families that go to Schuler's, is the special menu for children under 12 — with smaller servings and prices.

Among the desserts, some of the favorites are: rum chiffon pie and toasted cocoanut snowball, with fudge topping. The recipes that follow are more or less like the Schuler specialties.

RUM CHIFFON PIE

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
¼ cup cold water
1 cup hot milk
⅛ teaspoon salt
1-3 cup sugar
½ cup cream, whipped
2 tablespoons rum flavoring
2 egg whites, well beaten
Baked pastry shell (9-inch)

Soften gelatine in cold water. Add hot milk and salt, and stir until dissolved. Add sugar and stir until sugar is dissolved. Chill in refrigerator until syrupy. Beat until mixture will hold shape. Fold into whipped cream and add rum flavoring. Fold in well-beaten egg whites, and pile into 9-inch baked pie shell. Chill in refrigerator. Just before serving, garnish with whipped cream, if desired.

FUDGE TOPPING

2 squares chocolate
1 cup water
2 cups sugar
Dash of salt
2 tablespoons corn syrup (light)
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
2 tablespoons butter

Cut chocolate in pieces and stir over low heat with water until smooth and thick. Add sugar, salt and corn syrup and stir until dissolved. Boil 3 minutes. Add vanilla extract and butter. Yield: 12 servings.

Note" This sauce may be stored in a covered jar in the refrigerator and reheated.

YOUR FOOD PROBLEM

By Edith M. Barber

EVERY PEAR SHOULD BE SO BLESSED: going into the makings and garnish of a deep-dish pear cake which is twice sauced, first with brown sugar syrup, second with creamy sherry sauce.

Pear Recipes Are Popular For Use in Fall Menus

One thing leads to another just naturally. That fancy recipe for pears Helene, published recently, er of the same type which the brought forth a request for another of the same type which the reader believed is known as pears Eugenie.

Edith Barber

While there is none with that title listed in my files, from the description the request can be answered satisfactorily (I hope). The pears may be fresh (or canned), halved and cooked slightly after paring and coring. A light syrup is used for poaching the fruit. The sauce is perhaps the important part, and is made with a thickened custard and with cream.

According to my correspondent, the sauce must go into the serving dish first and then the halved pear. More sauce should be supplied so it can be added as desired. Either vanilla or sherry may be used as the flavoring. While this sauce is usually served cold, it is just as good — or perhaps even better — when hot.

In hot form, this sauce is particularly good with a steamed chocolate or fruit pudding, or with a cottage pudding for which a plain cake or a spongecake may be used as the base. It is also good with a chocolate cake mix served hot as it comes from the oven.

DEEP-DISH PEAR CAKE

1 can (no. 2½ pear halves
1¼ cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ cup soft butter
1 egg
1-3 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

SAUCE

¼ cup pear syrup
3 tablespoons butter
½ cup brown sugar
1 tablespoon dark corn syrup

Drain pear halves, reserving ¼ cup syrup. Reserve 2 halves for garnish. Slice remaining pears into bottom of 9-inch pie pan or cake dish. Combine all dry ingredients for batter in large bowl. Make well in center and add soft butter, egg, milk and vanilla extract. Beat until batter is smooth. Spread evenly over sliced pears. Mix together ingredients for sauce in small saucepan. Bring to a boil and cook 2 minutes. Pour over top of cake batter. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for 35 minutes. Slice remaining 2 pear halves into thirds. Arrange slices on top of cake. Replace cake in oven and bake 10 minutes longer or until done. Serve warm with cream. Yield: 6 servings.

CREAMY PUDDING SAUCE

1½ tablespoons flour
1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
3 tablespoons butter
2 egg yolks, well beaten
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract or 2 tablespoons sherry
½ cup heavy cream, whipped

Mix flour and sugar. Cream butter, add sugar and flour mixture gradually, and cream together until well blended. Stir in well-beaten egg yolks and milk. Cook mixture over hot water, stirring constantly until smooth and thick. Remove from heat, set pan in cold water, and cool quickly. Beat in vanilla extract or sherry slowly. Fold in whipped cream. Serve with hot puddings. Yield: 6 servings.

PEAR FRITTERS

2 large or 3 medium pears
Lemon juice
1 egg
1-3 cup milk
1 tablespoon melted butter
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt

Pare, core and dice pears. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Beat egg with milk and add melted butter. Stir in the sifted dry ingredients, and when smooth, stir in the diced fruit. Drob by tablespoonfuls into deep hot fat. Fry until brown, about 2 minutes. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve with meat, or with a sauce as a dessert.

Note: Drained canned pears may replace the fresh fruit. Pear juice may replace the milk.

Citrus Fruits Play Vital Health Role

Very few people at least when in normal health, ever suffer from lack of vitamin C — or ascorbic acid, as it is now known in the scientific world. This is largely due to the fact that citrus fruits which provide this so liberally are so well liked.

It is certainly no hardship to take orange juice or grapefruit juice daily or to eat the pulp from the shell, as many prefer to do, especially with grepefruit. Oranges of larger size are also popular when offered in this fashion. At this season, folks are enjoying the grapefruit which becomes more plentiful as the season advances.

The first fruit is small, but often full of flavor and sweetness. This is more noticeable with the small than with the large, heavy fruit which comes later. Ascorbic acid, long before it was known as such, had been recognized for centuries as a preventive or remedy for scurvy. This was very common when, through the long winter months, there was little fresh food available.

Sometimes, the whole crew of a sailing vessel — when hardtack, saltfish and meat was the usual diet — would be badly affected. It is a historic fact, however, that after cargoes of citrus fruits were taken on at southern ports, recovery was quick. After this, every effort was made to include lemons at least among the rations. Sauerkraut was another food that proved itself valuable as a scurvy preventive.

VARIATIONS

Fruit jelly: Fold 1¼ cups whole berries or sliced fruit into lemon jelly when it begins to set. Pour in mold and chill until set.

Lime Jelly: Substitute lime juice for lemon juice.

Orange jelly: Reduce boiling water to 1½ cups, lemon juice to ¼ cup, and increase orange juice to 1¾ cups.

Have Russians Tested The H-bomb Missile?

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Russians may have test fired an intercontinental ballistic missile with an H-bomb warhead.

Some observers here believe this is more than just a possibility.

AEC verification that the Soviets were testing megaton range bombs in the arctic, plus Russian declarations that on Oct. 6 an H-bomb explosion was set off "at a great height," supports speculation about missile-borne warheads.

Some sources here pay considerable attention to the Soviet claim that Russian bombs are tested high in the air to limit radioactive contamination. The Russians know as well as anybody that explosions in the stratosphere spread contamination more extensively around the world than lower bursts do.

If the Russians are sensitive to world opinion, and they seem to be, they must know that they would inflict more harm on other countries with ordinary high bursts than they would with lower ones.

So there has been speculation that when the Russians claim to explode their H-bombs at "very great heights" where they will do no harm, they mean at altitudes transcending the stratosphere with its 20-mile ceiling.

Radioactive released above the stratosphere conceivably would never settle to the surface of the earth. It would, in effect, be spewed into space.

But no airplane could carry the Soviet H-bomb to such heights. It would require a powerful rocket-propelled missile.

President Eisenhower himself said Wednesday the Soviets appear to have had an eight -year head start on the United States in development of ballistic missiles. So it is by no means unlikely, according to atomic sources here, that the Russians have combined their missile shoots with their H-bomb tests.

At Least Six Die from Asian Flu

By UNITED PRESS

Health officials today counted at least six new deaths blamed on Asian flu in mounting outbreaks of the disease across the country.

Milwaukee's flu epidemic hit its peak and was expected to continue another three weeks before declining. But in New York, scene of today's final World Series game, a flu epidemic appeared on the wane.

Three of the latest deaths believed caused by flu or flu-induced complications were in Michigan, two of them in Pennsylvania and one in Utah.

Among the victims was Patricia Longo, 18, of Pittsburgh, a student nurse. Dr. Jonas Salk, developer of the Salk polio vaccine and an influenza expert, was asked to conduct tests to determine the exact cause of death.

The disease continued to rage through the South. Louisiana health authorities reported 300,000 flu cases since July 14 and a total of 51 deaths blamed on influenza and complications. But the outbreak there was believed to be on the decline.

An Asian flu outbreak in Kentucky hit an estimated 1,000 persons and forced the closing of all schools in Trigg County on the Tennessee state line.

Other schools were forced to close down in Michigan and Pennsylvania, including two high schools in Detroit; high schools in Saginaw and Manistee, Mich., and about 12 schools in the Pittsburgh area.

Flu also hit a number of collegiate football camps, including the University of Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind., where three first-stringers and a reserve were sidelined and four other players were restricted to light workouts in preparation for the Army game Saturday.

Other flu outbreaks struck football teams at Moravian, Lafayette, Moravian—Juniata football games College and Rutgers University. The Lafayette - Delaware and Moravian - Juanita football gaes this week end were cancelled.

Seek Cause of Jet Bomber Crash; Four from Florida Base Killed

ORLANDO, Fla. (UP)—A board of officers today sought the cause of a crash of a six-jet bomber Wednesday that killed four airmen, including a Royal Air Force officer.

Brig. Gen. Paul S. Emerick, commander of the Sixth Air Division at MacDill Air Force Base at Tampa, headed the investigation of the in-flight explosion of a B47 Stratojet bomber which smashed into a pasture some seven miles northwest of here, killing all those aboard.

Witnesses said the aircraft, on a routine training flight out of nearby Pinecastle Air Force Base, was headed for Orlando but veered 180 degrees off course seconds before the explosion occurred over a raceway off U.S. Highway 44.

The dead were identified as:

Col. Michael McCoy, 52, Orleans, Ind., commander of the 321st Bomb Wing at Pinecastle.

Lt. Col. Charles Joyce, 38, Winchester, Mass., director of operations at Pinecastle and the plane's co-piloi.

Maj. Vernon E. Stuff, 39, Roseville, Calif., the navigator.

Group Capt. John Woodroffe, commander of the Royal Air Force detachment at Pinecastle which will compete in precision bombing exercises this month.

There was no immediate explanation of the crash.

Named Squire for West View Area

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov George M. Leader has appointed Samuel J. Fairley, 94 Oak Ave., West View, Pittsburgh, as justice of the peace for West View, succeeding the late Benjamin B Moore.

The appointment expires next January.

Vitamins, Children

CHICAGO (UP)—The American Academy of Pediatrics has warned against trying to raise "supernormal" children with the help of vitamins. There is no growth stimulation in vitamins, the academy's committee on nutrition reported. Nevertheless, the committee said, anxious parents put pressure on doctors for body-building "tonics" to help their children grow.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Pvt Alex Koszykowski, who was killed in action in Italy 13 years ago today, October 10, 1944, during World War II.
Duty called and he was there
To do his best and take his share.
No one knows now much we miss him
None but aching hearts can tell.
He little thought when leaving home
He would no more return,
That he in death so soon would sleep,
And leave us here to mourn.
We do not know what pain he bore,
We did not see him die.
We only know he passed away
And never said goodbye.
But God is good, He gave us strength
To bear our grievous cross.
He is the only one who knows
How bitter is our loss
Sadly missed by Mother, Father, Sisters and Brothers

Smelling Centers Have Nothing to Do with Control of Tempers

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UP) - Whatever it is in our brains which controls our tempers (most of the time) it doesn't seem to be the brain center which has to do with smelling. And so another scientific theory goes tumbling.

That emerges from experiments of Drs. P. J. Morgane and A. J. Kosman of Northwestern University Medical School, Chicago, with the functioning brains of living cats, those being animals notable for hair-triggered tempers.

Instead of temper control, they found the brain center to which the nerves of smelling run, (the "amygdaloid complex",) was more concerned with putting a ceiling on appetite.

Since it always has been evident that smelling (the right smells) rouses appetites, the doctors' preliminary results indicated this brain center also has a checking arrangement which prevents that it starts in the way of appetite from going too far.

Rage Measured

Previous experiments of removing this brain center (from cats) produced both super hair-triggered cats and exceedingly placid cats. Though these results were contradictory, both sets pointed toward temper being at the core of its function.

Morgane and Kosman measured as best they could the "rage thresholds" of nine cats before they removed the gray matter of their amygdaloid complexes. After the cats recovered from the operations, their temper thresholds were unchanged so far as the scientists could tell.

But they granted the tempers of cats were difficult to measure; they knew of "several animals of extremely nasty temper" who became well-adjusted after being well cared for in a laboratory for some time—and this without any surgery, mind.

The previous investigators reported their brain-altered cats were more active sexually than they had been. Morgane and Kosman noted none of that; their cats were more active generally and yowled and meowed more, but not spectacularly, only "moderately."

But eating was another matter. Their cats had ravenous appetites which stayed with them for weeks, up to the time they made their preliminary report on the experiment to the technical journal, "Nature."

They measured these ravenous appetites both by the weight of the food the cats consumed and by the weight they gained in consuming it. When the totals were compared to what normal cats ate when permitted to eat all they pleased and the weight those cats gained, it was obvious that one phase of cat nature definitely had been changed.

However, the change was not nearly as much as has been produced in experimentally cutting out the hypothalamus center from the rest of the brain. Cats subjected to that procedure ate so much they doubled their weight and more. The hypothalamus has long been considered the appetite control center of people as well as cats. The new experiments indicate it is not the only control.

Red Spy Sentenced

KARLSRUHE, Germany (UP)—A 69-year-old widow began a 16-month prison term today as a spy for the East German Communists. Mrs. Charlotte Wallburch, who runs a boarding house near Bonn, was convicted of conducting treasonable relations with the Soviet zone intelligence service. She was accused of planting microphones in her guest rooms to collect information, and watching West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's motorcade go by her window to get data on security precautions.

No Danger from Paint on Toys

WASHINGTON (UP)—There is no special danger to children from paint o Japanese made or other foreign toys, according to U. S. Surgeon General Leroy E. Burney.

Burney issued a statement Tuesday night saying tests by the U.S. Public Health Service and state and city laboratories reveal "no significant difference between domestic and foreign toys in the matter of lead content of paint."

The statement was made in reply to reports that paint used on Japanese toys sold in retail stores in the United States could give children lead poisoning. Burney said Public Health Service study was made with the aid of a group of consultants "who are experts in lead poisoning."

Extra Pat Of Butter Fattening

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

A pat of butter is a pretty small thing. But eat too many of them and you are apt to develop into a pretty big thing.

Butter is a good food. It's tasty and a normal amount under ordinary circumstances won't hurt or do any harm. In fact, your body needs a certain amount of fat.

But just one extra pat of butter a day can play havoc with your weight problem. The average pat of butter contains approximately 85 calories.

A single pound of body weight equals about 3,500 calories. That means, just one pat of butter a day above your metabolic requirements could add some eight pounds to your waistline during the course of a year.

Too many sweets will do the same thing. A piece of pie, for example, contains an average of around 230 calories. Just one extra piece of pie per week might add three pounds of body weight in a single year.

You don't have to embark upon any starvation diet to cut down on your calorie intake. Just eliminating between-meal nibbling probably will accomplish a lot.

A person who is really obese probably eats the equivalent of one extra dinner per day. So cutting down just a little on your regular meals also will help quite a bit.

It might be a good idea, too, to avoid foods cooked in fats and to eliminate oily salad dressings from your diet if you are overweight.

Why should you want to keep your weight down if you feel healthy despite a few extra pounds?

I have repeatedly pointed out the perils of the obese. They are more likely to develop heart trouble, kidney trouble and disease of the blood vessels, to name just a few hazards.

If you are fat, your heart has to work harder to keep you going. Take breathing for instance.

Even while resting, a very obese person will breathe three times per minute more than a person of average weight. With work or exercise, the difference is even greater. You can see how this might tax the heart

Question And Answer

A.D.R.: What causes psoriasis and is there a cure for it?

Answer: Its cause is not known, but it is thought that psoriasis may be due to some disorder in the metabolism of nitrogen.

World of TV—

Three Spectaculars On TV This Sunday

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP) — This Sunday evening, NBC and CBS will squeeze three spectaculars inside your TV machine, a feat roughly comparable to stuffing a cantaloupe inside a tea bag.

CBS will offer a spec devoted to an auto firm, NBC will offer specs devoted to an oil firm and a puppet. There'll be a tubful of big stars sliding around the channels—Tyrone Power, Bing Crosby, Frank Sinatra, Jimmy Durante, just to tick off a few.

The biggest star, however, will be Walter Slezak, who scales in at 260 pounds. Slezak will play Papa Geppetto to Mickey Rooney's Pinocchio in an NBC musical devoted to the dummy with nose trouble.

"'Pinocchio' is going on at 6:30 e.d.t. just in time to ruin everybody's dinner," said Slezak during a rehearsal break. He looked melancholy. "I really can't judge very well myself, but I don't think we're going to kill off the memory of Walt Disney's 'Pinocchio.'

Jiminy Cricket Missing

"But it's pretty faithful as Pinocchios go. The only character missing is Jiminy Cricket. They had to take him out because they couldn't find an actor small enough to sit on Mickey Rooney's shoulder."

Slezak heaved a mournful sigh and watched the actors stomping around the rehearsal hall. "I like fairy tales myself," he said, "I make them up for my own children. But I think the only way to put a fairy tale on TV is to kid it a little—that way you get grownups to watch, too. You take 'Peter Pan'—a delightful example of spoofing.

"Right now, I can't tell whether this 'Pinocchio' is going to be done with tongue in cheek or foot in mouth. But it looks like they're going to play it more or less straight.

"I think it may be a little hard for some grownups to accept Mickey Rooney as Pinocchio — he looks a little like Jose Ferrer playing Toulouse - Lautrec. And there is the question of some of the humor, too. When Pinocchio talks, sawdust falls out of his mouth—a good gag except they repeat it and others like it endlessly.

"However, I am sure the four and five year olds will enjoy it. The question is how many four and five year olds will rush into the sponsor's (Rexall) drugstores to buy products. Cornflakes would be more in their line."

Slezak shifted his bulk and considered the question of satire on TV. "There isn't much spoofing of anything on TV. TV is afraid. I watched a lot of TV myself last month and I must say it was something awful.

"The intimate cabaret where you can see a whole revue is something you can't get in America, but in Europe they are everywhere. They spoof everything. It is ridiculous that America, one of the few free countries, doesn't have something like this.

"They play to packed houses, too. And I'm sure it's something TV might learn something from. There's no reason for TV to be afraid, you know—if something is good it will be a success — even satire."

CROSBY ON TV — Bing Crosby will be shown in a big television spectacular Sunday evening along with Frank Sinatra and many other stars on The Edsel Show from 8 to 9 p. m. on KDKA-TV, Channel 2.

New Star Gets no 'Treatment'

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Blonde Gena Rowlands is the latest Broadway actress to walk through movieland's front door to stardom —without build-up, ballyhoo or starlet treatment.

Like Joanne Woodward, Eva Marie Saint and Grace Kelly, Gena has an aristocratic look about her and an aversion to posing for cheesecake. And like others of this new breed of beauties, she's headed for big things.

"Thank the Lord I've skipped the starlet stage," Gena said during lunch in the MGM commissary. "The mink coat and swimming pool bit just isn't for me.

"To begin with, I don't see what it has to do with acting. It would be nice to be famous, but not that way. Being a starlet and posing for cheesecake is an art all to itself."

The shapely newcomer also debunks the "discovery" plot.

Willowy Figure

"It's not necessary to be discovered on a soda fountain stool or riding a bicycle anymore," she smiled.

"And the gimmick name, like 'oomph girl,' 'sweater girl' and the rest are out of style, too. Young actresses today can get experience on TV without having to do all the silly things expected of starlets.

"I don't want to sound harsh about being a professional cutie, if that's what a girl wants, fine, but not me.

"Some starlets have reached stardom, even become top-flight actresses. Joan Crawford, Betty Grable, Marilyn Monroe, Lana Turner and Ava Gardner started out as starlets. They've done very well."

Gena, a native of Wisconsin, is married to actor John Cassavetes. She has wide-set, smokey gray eyes and a willowy, Grace Kelly-type figure.

TV NOTES

Peggy Wood, who played the title role of "Mama" for so long on TV, can be seen tonight in the leading part in "The Playroom" on the CBS "Playhouse 90" series.

"Twenty-one" has just entered its second year. Arthur Godfrey's "Talent Scouts" show has begun its 10th TV season, and this is the 12th season for "Arthur Godfrey Time," dating its origin from radio.
